The Good Templars.

FAIRFAX, C. H., July 31, 1877.—Providence Lodge, No. 3, held its quarterly election on Friday evening last, when the following officers were chosen:—W. C. T., D. M. Chichester; W. V. T., Miss Sallie Sisson; W. S., C. H. Macaulay; W. F. S., C. H. Canfield; W. T., Miss M. Johnson; W. C., S. P. Ramsey; W. M., J. W. Whaley; W. I. G., Miss M. E. Canfield; W. O. G., Chas. Wells; R. H. S., Mrs. G. Hawxbury; L. H. S., Miss Emma Miller; W. A. S., Miss A. Vosberg; R. W. C. T., W. T. Stokes.

This Lodge has just put into operation a library of over eighty volumes, which will, doubtless, prove a great attraction to its members.

Two new lodges were organized last week by W. T. Stokes, District Deputy—one at Catlett's Station, Fauquier, with S. Gibson Catlett, W. C. T., and Rev. J. S. Porter, L. D., and the other, Guiding Star Lodge, No. 190, at Stafford Station, Stafford county, with R. D. Shacklett, W. C. T., and Miss M. M. Cooper, L. D.

The Good Templars now number considerably over six thousand in the State of Virginia, and they are increasing rapidly.

Patience, Hope and Charity is their motto. Therefore they may be termed a religious organization, for their foundations are laid squarely on the teaching of the Bible. "Abstinence for the individual, and prohibition for the State" is their platform. Rev. John McGill read an address from Bishop Whittle, on Sunday last, in which the Bishop urged upon all the members in his diocese the high standard of total abstinence as a Christian duty.

The Good Templars' mission may be expressed in two words—prevention, reformation. Those who would seek to reform only might as well endeavor to dry up the Potomac with a mop. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," says an old proverb. There can be no temperance use of a thing, which, aside from its medicinal uses, is physically and morally unlawful. Can a man temperately cut his finger or shorten his life? Therefore, they aim to combine all elements of society against the evil.

When we remember the wonderful vitality of these societies, when we observe that the Good Templars in twenty-five years have grown to a cosmopolitan organization of over 750,000, and that this is peculiarly the age of organization for special ends, what may the influence of this Order be in fifty years?

The Pint of Ale.

An exchange contains the following: A Massachusetts printer was, on his wedding day, asked by his wife to allow her two half-pints of ale a day as her share of the extra comforts. He made the bargain, but not cheerfully, for though a drinker himself (fancying, no doubt, that he could well do without it,) he would have preferred a perfectly sober wife. They both worked hard. John loved his wife, but he could not break away from his old associations at the ale house, and when not in the factory or at his meals, he was with his boon companions. His wife made the small allowance meet her housekeeping expenses—keeping her neat and tidy, and he could not complain that she insisted upon her daily pint of ale, while he, very likely, drank two or three quarts. Once in a while the wife succeeded, by gentle loving artifice, in drawing her husband home an hour or two earlier than usual, and very rarely she persuaded him to spend a whole evening in her company. They had been married a year, and on the morning of their wedding anniversary, John looked with real pride upon the neat and comely person of his wife, and with a touch of remorse in his look and tone, he said:

"Mary, w'n had no holiday since we were wed, an' only that I haven't a penny i' th' world, we've take a jaunt to th' village an' so th' mither."

"Wouldn't like to go, John?" she asked. There was a tear with her smile, for it touched her heart to hear him speak tenderly as in the old times.

"If th' d' like to go, John, I'll stand t'ree," "Thou stand t'ree, Mary? Has got a farin' left thee?"

"Nay, but I'm gotten the pint o' ale," said she.

"Gotten what, wife?"

"The pint o' ale," she repeated.

"And thereupon she went to the hearth, and from beneath one of the stove legs drew forth a stocking from which she poured upon the table the sum of three hundred and sixty-five three-pennies—4£. 11s. 3d.—exclaiming:—

"See John, thee can now have a holiday."

"What is this?" he asked in amazement.

"It's my daily pint o' ale, John," she answered.

He was conscience stricken as well as amazed. "Mary, hasn't thee had any share? Then I'll ha' no more fro' this day."

And he was as good as his word. They had their holiday with the old mother, and Mary's little capital, saved from the "pint o' ale," was the seed from which, as the years rolled on, grew shop, factory, warehouse, country seat, and carriage, with health, happiness, peace, honor and renown.
